INTRODUCTION

Because the peace loving people of the Canadian Province of Acadia refused to swear allegiance to the British crown, they were subjected to cruel and most unusual punishments. Their crops were destroyed, their cattle were slaughtered, their homes were burned and the people were driven aboard ships by British bayonets and scattered among the English colonists along the Atlantic coast. This act of barbarism is known in history as the Exile of the Acadians. (See Longfellow's Evangeline.) It took place in 1755, the year that Braddock was defeated by the French and Indians.

A baby girl named Elizabeth Boudreau was born to one of these exiled families. At the age of eighteen she eloped and became the wife of Joseph Corporon. The late Oliver Dodge of Chicago was their grandson.

THE GAUDET LETTER

The above mentioned Oliver Dodge, desiring details of the life of his grandfather, Joseph Corporon, journeyed to Ottawa, Canada, in about 1893, and made inquiry of Placide P. Gaudet of 140 Nicholas Street. Mr. Gaudet who was a Notary Public and Keeper of Public Records wrote out and delivered to Mr. Dodge a unique and interesting account of Joseph's love and elopement. The following "Corporon Romance" is a re-write of the Gaudet letter.

A CORPORON ROMANCE

An Acadian named Claude Boudreau (the Boudrecius of Clare are known under the nickname of Sacos) married Judith Laudry on Dec. 1, 1747 in their native village of Grand Pre. When the Acadians were exiled, Claude and Judith and their little children were cast ashore somewhere on Massachusetts Bay in New England. It was here that their daughter, Marguerite, was born on April 11, 1757. In attempting to work their way back to Acadia by slow and painful stages, the family settled at Saco Bay, Maine, where circumstances compelled them to spend several years. It was here that several of their children were born and among them was Elizabeth Boudreau whose birthday was Oct. 13, 1760. Sometime after 1770, the family succeeded in reaching Acadia. They made their home at Church Point, Clare, Digby County, where also now lived Marguerite and her husband, Louis Thibreau.

Eustache Corporon, a native of Alsace Lorraine, France lived at Tusket Wedge. He had married Angelique Viger (called Brigeau). Their oldest child was Joseph Corporon, born about 1754.

This Joseph Corporon in the fall of 1779 sailed his fishing boat to Church Point and spent some days as a guest at the Louis Thibreau home. Here he met and fell in love with Elizabeth Boudreau, Mrs. Thibreau's sister. Elizabeth's parents objected and she was forbidden to go again to her sister's home. Then it was she asked permission to go lobster hunting and her mother reluctantly consented. But instead of going toward the shore, she went to the home of one Cassimere Le Blanc where Joseph awaited her.

In those days there was no resident priest in Clare or in Argyle. Acadians wishing to be married would pledge themselves before witnesses. Father J. M. Bourge in 1774 had appointed a person in each locality to receive these pledges. By right of such appointment, Cassimere Le Blanc united in marriage Joseph Corporon and Elizabeth Boudreau on Oct. 20, 1779. At the same time and place, Sylvain Pothier, a boy from Joseph's home town of Tusket Wedge, was married to Elizabeth Le Blanc.

At once, Joseph and his bride set sail in their fishing boat for Tusket Wedge and arrived there at the same time as did the other newly weds. Several were on hand to welcome the Pothiers. Among them was Eustache Corporon who knew nothing of his son's marriage. When Joseph introduced his wife, Eutache said mournfully:

"Look at Sylvain Pothier! He comes back with a crown of blessedness while you arrive with a crown of ill luck."

Persons married before witnesses were required to be remarried in accordance with the rites of the Roman Catholic Church on the next visit of the Missionary Priest. When Father Bourge next visited Yarmouth County in 1781, he met couples at Eel Brook where the ceremonies were made complete and marriage certificates issued. As late as 1893, the Pothier certificate was still on file. The document ends with these words in French:

"Marries faute de prestre en presence de temorris le viergt Octobre lau mil sept septante neuf."
(For want of a priest, married before witnesses on Oct. 20, 1779.)

Joseph and Elizabeth Corporon were remarried on August 23, 1781 but their certificate has passed out of knowlege.

On March 15, 1786, Joseph sold his land at Tusket
Wedge, (at a place then called Mabichidarguene) to Armand Pothier, Sylvain's brother, and moved to Bear Cove on St. Mary's Bay between Metegan and Salmon River.
He was the father of eleven children. It is said that he never otherwise prospered. That crown of ill luck!

THE CORPORON NAME

The name, Corporon, has various spellings. It appears as Coperon in a book that names the families living in Grand Pre when that village was burned by the British.
A book in the University of Missouri library says that Corpron or Coperon come from a French word "cor-pierre-on" meaning court of Peter, and the name comes out of the middle ages and from the province of Puy de Dome in central France.

A college teacher of French says that "cor-pierre-on" is probably a variant of "coeur-pieu-on." "Coeur" is heart and "pieu" is stake. He adds that the name looks like "heart-impaler"—one of those knighthood threat names.

A CORPORON ROMANCE

An Acadian named Claude Boudreau (the Boudrecius of Clare are known under the nickname of Sacos) married Judith Laundry on December 1, 1747 in their native village of Grand Pre. When the Acadians were exiled, Claude and Judith and their little children were cast ashore somewhere on Massachusetts Bay in New England. Joseph and Elizabeth Corporon were remarried on August 23, 1781 but their certificate has passed out of knowledge.

On March 15, 1786, Joseph sold his land at Tusket Wedge, (at a place called Mabichidarguene) to Armand Pothier, Sylvain's brother and moved to Bear Cove on St. Mary's Bay Between Metegan and Salmon River. THE SAD FATE OF THE ACADIANS

By Ray Coffman

Among the poems which tell a story, "Evangeline" ranks high. The poet, Longfellow tells about a young Acadian woman named Evangeline who was parted from Gabriel, the man she loved.

While trying to locate Gabriel, Evangeline traveled down the Mississippi River. At last she gave up the search and became a nun. Many years later she found Gabriel, but he was ill and died soon afterward.

That is a sad story, and it leaves the reader with a feeling of sorrow. We wonder how such a thing as the movement of Acadians could have happened. Evangeline is a character of fiction, but certain facts laid the basis for the fiction. There really was an Acadia, and a change of owners took place at the time Evangeline is supposed to have lived there.

Going further back, we find a contest for North America, with Great Britain, France and Spain as the leading nations seeking the continent. During that contest, there was a New Spain, also a New England and a New France.

English vessels under the Cabots explored the coasts of Nova Scotia and Labrador and Great Britain laid a broad claim to land now in Canada. The French came long after the Cabots, but they started colonies in Canada before British settlers arrived.

Scottish and English families followed the French across the Atlantic and built homes in the land which the French called Acadie, or Acadia. That land was given the name of Nova Scotia by a British King.

There were wars between the French and British, and Acadia or Nova Scotia changed hands time and again. The French settlers, known as Acadians, took part in several battles, but usually spent their days in raising crops and taking care of cattle.

Two centuries ago, the British gained in the struggle for Acadia. They told the French settlers that they must take an oath to be loyal to Great Britain. Most of the Acadians replied that they never would accept such an oath and were ordered deported. Sailing vessels carried about 6000 of them to Louisiana and other places. They were allowed to take away their money and household goods.

I beg leave to say that Joseph Corporon, your great grandfather, was born about the year 1754. He was the eldest son of Eustache Corporon and Agelique Viger called Brigeau. In the fall of 1779, he left Tusket Wedge, in a fishing boat and went to Church point, Clare, Digby County and there, for several days, he was the guest of Louis Thibreau whose wife's maiden name was Marguarite Boudreau, born in New England, April 11, 1757 of the lawful marriage of Claude Boudreau and Judith Laudry, both natives of Grand Pre, when they were married December 1, 1747.

The Boudrecius of Clare are known under the nickname of Sacos. At the expulsion of the Acadians in the fall of 1755, Claude Boudreau and his wife and family were transported to Massachusetts Bay, whence they went to Saco Bay, Maine, where they lived for several years. After 1770 they left that place for St. Mary's Bay and settled at Church Point. Several of their children were born at Saco Bay; amongst them was Elizabeth, on the 13 of October, 1760. This is the person that Joseph Corporon married on the 20th of October, 1779. As you see she was a minor and moreover, there is an elopement in this case, the first one that ever took place in Clare.

In those early days, there was no resident priest in Clare nor in Argyle; and therefore those amongst the Acadians who wanted to be united in matrimony had no other means than to pledge each other before witnesses. In each locality a person had been appointed by Father J. M. Bourg, in 1774, to receive the mutual consent of the parties who wished to be married. The one who held this office at Church Point was Cassimere Le Blanc; and it is before him that Joseph Corporon and Elizabeth Boudreau were united in matrimony. It is a well known fact in Clare that this marriage took place at the same time as that of Sylvain Pothier of Tucket Wedge to Elizabeth La Blanc of Church Point.

The persons thus married before witnesses were obliged on the next visit of the missionary priest to have their marriage performed in accordance with the rites of the Roman Catholic Church. Father Bourg's first visit in Yarmouth county was in August, 1781 and those who had been married previously, before witnesses, went to Eel Brook to be re-married by him. A certificate of such performance was given by the priest, to each couple. In 1893, I have taken from the original a copy of the marriage of Sylvain Pothier and Elizabeth Le Blanc, and it ends thus; "Marries faute de prietre en presence de temorris le viereg Octobre lau mil sept septante neuf," (for want of a priest, married before witnesses on the 20th of October in the year 1779).

Joseph Corporon and Elizabeth Boudreau were re-married on the 23rd of August, 1781 and a certificate was given to them also, but what became of it I have no knowledge.

After this long explanation, let us come to the last elopement. As already said, Joseph Corporon was staying at Louis Thibreau's house at Church Point. There he met his future wife, who was visiting her sister almost daily. As a mutual consequence, Joseph Corporon and Elizabeth Boudreau fell in love and wanted to be married; but the young girl's mother objected to this and forbade her daughter to go to Thibreau's house. The two lovers were bound to be united in matrimony against the will of the girl's parents and arrangements were made accordingly.

On the 20th of October, Elizabeth Boudreau asked her mother's permission to go fishing lobsters at the shore. At first the mother refused, but at last gave consent. Instead of going to the shore, Elizabeth went directly to Cassimire LeBlanc's house where Joseph Corporon was waiting for her, and they were immediately married.

No sooner was the ceremony performed, than they made for the shore and went at once on board of Joseph Corporon's boat and sailed off for Tusket Wedge, where they arrived at the same time that Sylvain Pothier and his bride did. There were several people at the shore to welcome Pothier and his wife, among whom were Eustache Corporon, Joseph's father who knew nothing of his son's marriage. When Joseph introduced his wife to his father, the latter answered mournfully, "look at Sylvain Pothier, he comes back with a crown of blessedness while you arrive with a crown of ill luck". And so it was, for Joseph Corporon never prospered.

On the 15th of March, 1786, he sold the lot of land he owned at Tusket Wedge at a place called then, Mabichidarguene, to Armand Pothier, Sylvain's brother, and removed to Bear Cove on St. Mary's Bay between Meteghan and Salmon River.

His children were:

1. Abraham, born 1780, married Ruth Pritchard
2. Edward, born 1782, married Euphrosine McCullingh, daughter of John and Prazede Sauliuer-1808.
3. Angelique, born 1784 (I do not know whom she married)
4. Marguerite, born 1785, married Augustin Frontain-1812.
5. Germain, born 1787, married Genevieve Robichand-1824.
6. Christine, born 1788, married Joseph Mathurine McCullingh-
7. Pierre, born at Point Prim, 1790;died unmarried 1809
8. Joseph, born 1794.
9. Anseline, born May 5, 1795
10. Marie, born Aug. 16, 1799, Married Louis Mathien Marchianite.
11. Rosalie Ursule, born Mar. 26, 1804, died unmarried.

TO ALL CORPORONS (HOWEVER SPELLED)

Greetings:

We, indeed owe a debt of gratitude to 13-5, George William Corporon of Arcadia, Kansas. He spent years and considerable expense gathering this genealogy and history of our people. I have never met our cousin, but I have reports that he is a humble man who is an ordained minister and to date has preached 1,370 funerals. He is a reliable attorney-at-law who has stopped more lawsuits than he has filed. Incidentally, Mrs. Corporon, his wife, was selected "Kansas Mother of 1951".

It is our wish that you help build this Family Tree; many of the main branches need more dates and information, and the branches, of course, will continue to have offshoots. So we are asking you to contribute your share by sending any available information to:

George W. Corporon
Box 5
Arcadia, Kansas

OR J. Ray Martin
Box 221
Huntington, Oregon

We don't want anyone to think we want a monopoly on putting out any new issues of this manuscript. There is considerable expense involved, however, we feel that someone will undertake the task of putting out a revised "Tree" someday. Whoever that may be, we will gladly furnish any new material received.

Best Wishes.

J. Ray Martin

NEWSPAPER CLIPPINGS

Newspaper clipping-April 14, 1966 - Nelson O. Corporon 26-5
Nelson O. Corporon is the new mayor of Pittsburg, Kansas. A member of the city commission since 1963, he will succeed Gene Dicknell. Corporon is director of personnel of the McNally-Pittsburg Manufacturing Corp., former president of the Pittsburg United Fund, and a past member of the Pittsburg Planning and Zoning Commission.

4-7-59 Newspaper clipping -Jeanette Brumbaugh
Jeannette Meyers Brumbaugh, daughter of Jacob and Matilda Meyers was born February 12, 1879, at Martinstown, Missouri and departed this life April 7, 1959, at Osborne Memorial hospital at the age of 80 years. Deprived of her father by death at a very early age, she and her mother made their home with a grandmother, who was as influential in the molding of her character as her own mother. When she was old enough to support herself she went to Unionville to find employment, there making her home with her older sister, Loretta Fowler. When she was about 19 years old she came to Kansas, making her home with an uncle, Gaines Corporon of Osborne. On Nov. 26, 1904, she was married to Wm. L. Brumbaugh. To them were born five children, Wilma Paul, Ruth, Dean, and Homer. A few years after their marriage the family moved to Hill City, where they resided until 1921, when they returned to Portis, where she has since made her home.

Early in life, influenced by her grandmothers godly life and her teaching of the Bible, she accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as her Savior. When she moved to Portis she united with the First Brethren church, where she has since retained her membership. She was preceded in death by her husband, her son, Homer, who died in childhood, and her step-son, Loyal. She is survived by her four children: Mrs. Paul Rollins of Salina; Paul Brumbaugh of Phoenix, Arizona; Mrs. Joe Moore of Tulsa, Oklahoma, and Dean Brumbaugh of Portis; by 16 grandchildren, and by 25 great grandchildren.

GAINES CORPORON (Newspaper clipping 2-20-27)

Gaines Corporon was born May 8th 1849 in Linn Co. Iowa and departed this life on February 20, 1927 at his home in Osborne, Kansas, age 77. He enlisted in Co. H. 8th Iowa Cavalry, August 1, 1863 being but 14 years old. He was captured by the South in July 1864 and served in both the Florence and Andersonville prisons. He with others made their escape on February 22, 1865 just 62 years ago today. Mr. Corporon often mentioned this event as being the greatest in his life and expressed the desire to celebrate it accordingly. His soul today has escaped the prison house of pain and suffering. He was honorably discharged on June 10, 1865.

He was married to Susan Guffey on January 4, 1866 and these honored citizens celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary, January 4th 1927. It was sixty-one years of toiling together, pioneering and rearing a large family of honorable citizens, but as Mrs. Corporon expressed, it, 61 years of happiness together.

Eleven children blessed this home. Eight boys and three girls; three sons and one daughter having preceeded their father in death. Those surviving with his aged beloved wife and mother are M. E. Corporon of Oskaloosa Iowa; G. W. Corporon of Citrus Grove, Texas, T. A. Corporon of Hays, Kansas, Mrs. George Harding of Gaylord, Kansas; Gilbert Corporon of Osborne, Kansas, B. E. Corporon of Wichita, Kansas; Mrs. Eva Smith of Whittier, California. Besides these thrity four grandchildren, nineteen great grand children and one great great granddaughter. He came to Kansas from Missouri in 1878 and settled on a homestead in Grant Township, Osborne Co, where they resided until 1904 when they moved to Osborne. Mr. Corporon has been an honored and respected citizen, a soldier of the Civil War, a good father and a kind and loving husband.

His going leaves another open place in the ranks of the G. A. R. and a vacant place in the home. Besides those already mentioned he leaves one brother, two sisters, and one half brother and a community to mourn his demise.

"Life's labor done, as sinks the Clay,
Light from its load the Spirit flies.
While heaven and earth combine to say,
How blest the righteous when he dies."
